Occupational Health

What is occupational health?

Occupational Health (OH) is a specialist area of medicine concerned with preventing ill health at work, and supporting those with health conditions in work. In Cordell Health our doctors, nurses and physiotherapists all have specialist qualifications and extensive experience in OH. We adhere to a strict ethical code of practice as required by our regulators.

How can occupational health help me?

We provide managers and employees with independent professional advice about work-related health concerns. OH assessments are impartial and objective, the outcome of which will be to provide advice that will help both you and your employer. We will focus on ways in which we can help facilitate a return to work, if that is the most appropriate route for you.

Critical Illness Cover

Critical Illness Cover: We believe that it is vital for staff with the most severe illnesses to be financially supported so that they and their loved ones can concentrate on their health rather than worrying about money.

Your Critical Illness Cover will pay one year's salary as a lump sum payment to those colleagues who have a critical illness recognised by the policy:

- The Critical Illness cover will be in addition to the current life insurance cover, HSF Health Plan and sickness benefits.
- This includes extra benefits such as the Unum Cancer Support Service, provided by Harley Street Concierge Limited (HSC), a UK provider of personalised cancer support.
- Payments are made by lump sum in addition to anything earned in paid employment.
- To claim, an individual must notify the Chief Executive and/or Head of HR as soon as possible after diagnosis because completed paperwork needs to be sent within 21 days of diagnosis.
- Unum also provide all Treloar's employees with access to Lifeworks. This provides staff with life and wellbeing advice and resources, as well as discounts and perks on a wide range of offers.

Sick Pay: If illness or injury prevents staff from working, employees may be entitled to the following sick pay benefits (including the amount of any statutory sick pay or social security sickness benefit to which they may be entitled) provided that the Trust is satisfied with the reasons given for the sickness absence. Depending on length of service, the benefits outlined below may apply.
